EDITORS CORNER

Well another month has come around and I still haven't got the sack, Damn! I'm still working on it.

Having said the above, it may well be a situation that may arise in the New Year if things go my way. So I would like prospective Editors to consider talking to me about this, should my aspirations be realised. It may not be necessary at all, or may only be on a temporary basis, or may well be permanent. Either way, I would like those of you that consider yourselves able, to come forward so that we have a contingency plan, should this be necessary to implement.

I still need stories etc, so come on all you budding authors, give us your Harry Potters.

I apologise for the slight screw up on the last news-letter, but a few administrative errors came into play and caused some disruption to the layout and content along with the physical mail-out. My sincerest apologies. (Stuff It)

If you get the news-letter late, it is because I have some very pressing issues in my life at present that take priority over my time, so I also apologise for as well.

Front cover photograph by Grey McNeil. Bear Island, Sydney. If you would like to see your photograph on the front cover of an issue of the wet rag, please feel free to send me a copy. It must be scanned and e-mailed to me for consideration and preferably of diving interest. This can be either of land or sea content. In your choice of photograph, please consider it's reproductive qualities as a magazine picture and only two per member, so as to not overload my e-mail. It would also be preferable if they were zipped up as well.

Merry Xmas to all

PRESIDENTS POSSIE

Well it is time I suppose for us to review the past year, as this is my last message for 2001.

The Committee has changed somewhat since last month, as Louise has resigned from her post as Social Director and we thank her for her efforts. Mim & John Ford have honoured us by taking on this position and are now to be considered the new Social Direction team.

As of January Simon Gaylor has consented to be the new dive director and requests that I advise you all, if his efforts are not rewarded by participation then after a few months trial he will relinquish this position back into the wilderness.

So as your President I do ask members to stand behind these people and advise, help and attend to the efforts of these new officers.

During the past year our BBQ days were a little on the thin side and I have every confidence that this situation will improve dramatically with the coming new year as my personal position will be more stable. Add this to a new enthusiastic team and we should be off to a good start for 2002.

To recap the year I thank all the members who attended the meetings and made them a success. The numbers have steadily increased and to see the old members returning is wonderful to say the least. I feel that this is a positive vindication of all that we are doing. I especially would like to thank all office bearers for their dedication to their tasks over the past year and in wishing all a very Merry Xmas, I wish an extra special very Merry Xmas to these people.

It was very pleasing indeed to see the turn up to our Xmas party at the Greyhound Social Club. It was a good evening and the children that attended all seemed to enjoy themselves, even the big ones. A new experience for me was playing Santa and as children are, not one noticed a Germanic touch to the Ho Ho!

I wish all of you all the very best for the season and a prosperous and wet New Year.

See you all next year.

Bernie Kraul

NEW MEMBERS ARE WELCOME TO ATTEND OUR CLUB MEETINGS AND DIVE OUTINGS

South Pacific Divers Club is a social scuba diving club whose members have a common interest in scuba diving and in particular underwater photography. Club dives are on our web site. The club also organises weekends away at Jervis Bay and Nelsons Bay as well as other dive areas. We also organise once a year the Australasian Underwater Photographer of the Year Competition, open to all underwater photographers in Australia and Overseas. We also have a slide show after every meeting. South Pacific Divers Club holds monthly meetings at the Bankstown Sports Club on the third Monday of every month. Meetings start at 8:00 and generally a slide show follows.

Next Meeting Points to Ponder

- 1) Storage area for records etc. A cursory check about shows that storage is available for about $70-$80 per month. Can we do better? This is still on the agenda
- 2) Would anyone like to do a dive-skills update/refresher?
- 3) Would anyone be interested in a camera operations workshop?
- 4) Do you need your first aid certificates updated?
- 5) Would anyone like lessons in writing, typing or computer skills, as this may help me receive some stories for the wet rag.

Joke of the Month

The Buffalo Theory

A herd of buffalo can only move as fast as the slowest buffalo, and when the herd is hunted, it is the slowest and weakest ones at the back that are killed first. This natural selection is good for the herd as a whole, because the general speed and health of the whole herd is maintained or even improved by the regular culling of the weaker members.

In much the same way, the human brain can operate only as fast as the slowest brain cells through which the electrical signals pass. Recent epidemiological studies have shown that while excessive intake of alcohol kills off brain cells, it attacks the slowest and weakest cells first. Thus, regular consumption of beer helps eliminate the weaker cells, constantly making the brain faster and more efficient.

The result of this in-depth study verifies and validates the causal link between all-weekend parties and job related performance.

It also explains why, after a few short years of leaving a university and getting married, most professionals cannot keep up with the performance of the new graduates. Only those few that stick to the strict regiment of voracious alcoholic consumption can maintain the intellectual levels that they achieved during their college years.

So, this is a call to arms. As our country is losing its technological edge, we must not shudder in our homes. Get back into the bars. Scoff that schooner. Your company and country need you to be at your peak, and you shouldn't deny yourself the career that you could have. Take life by the bottle and BE ALL YOU CAN BE !!!

Forward this to all of your friends, acquaintances and co-workers that may be in danger of losing their edge. I don't know about you, but I already feel better about last weekend !

Rebreather Convert

Back in September 2001, I successfully completed a 'TDI Australia & New Zealand' ATLANTIS 1/DOLPHIN SEMI-CLOSED REBREATHER course kindly donated as a prize to the Jervis Bay 2001 Photographic Shoot Out by Gordon Harris of SCUBA ADVENTURES at Port Macquarie.

Gordon was my instructor and (at the risk of over praise) he really impressed me with his enthusiasm, knowledge, teaching skills, dedication to the sport and sense of humour. He's the type of bloke that all the guys want to shake his hand and all the gals want to kiss him (or is it the other way around?) Our four ocean dives were with John Duggan of ACTION DIVERS at Tuncurry, another guy who runs a very professional service and also a guy whose hand you would like to shake or to kiss him depending on your gender or your inclinations. Anyhow, to the course.

Prerequisites of the course were Nitrox qualifications and a recent dive medical. It was a four-day event, the first day on theory and familiarising with the equipment, the next morning a pool session for skills with two boat dives in the afternoon each with skills. Third day was another two boat dives with skill assessment then fully dismantle and cleansing of the unit. The last day was revision of the theory and a written test.

The theory I found at first to be a bit of a brain squeezer, it's been many 'yeers sinse I left school', Gordon's tuition simplified things and got me thinking on the right track.

The diving...well it was everything I was expecting. Having read various articles in Dive Log Australia these last few months I was mentally prepared for the experience. And what an experience!!! Even though it was not completely bubble free it was quiet enough for me to get closer to the marine life than I've ever been with some species.

Being an underwater photographer I can't wait to get diving with the rebreather and camera.

Nothing is ever perfect and one problem I did have was on the safety stops was the uncomfortable feeling of 'puffy cheeks' (now this for the initiated is the over filling of the mouth with air, and nothing to do with ... well... what you are all thinking...) this problem was made better on the next dive by adjusting the pressure relief valve on the exhaust bag to a lower setting, also, only a problem out of water, was the extra weight I had to carry.

Will I rush out and buy a unit?

Let's face it, I have a wife and no sane married man rushes out to buy anything, but you never know, she is wonderful, caring, understanding, generous and sympathetic to my needs. (And I hope she reads this.)

Fortunately there are units for hire and for the short term I will be looking into this.

Yes, a wonderful experience and one I would recommend to any one.

What's Bubbling

- With Festive season coming upon us, we are all pretty much choked as far as commitments are concerned. This column will be up and running in January's issue with Mim & John tackling the daunting task of getting us into a cohesive Social Group.
- This position within the Club and I would imagine any other Club, is perhaps the most difficult of all, so as your President, I would ask you all to be part of as many of the events that are arranged next year as your time and desire allows, but most important of all, be definite in your decisions and reliable in your attendance please.

The responsible spearfisher

Always tell someone where you will be diving.

Always make certain that you have chosen a safe entry and exit location before entering the water.

Always study the water movements (tides, currents, waves).

Always dive with a friend.

Always remove or cover your spearhead when not in the water.

Always use the safety catch on your spear-gun.

Always kill your fish immediately, and if possible remove it from the water.

Never load a spear-gun out of water.

Never point a spear-gun or hand spear at any person.

Never tether fish to your body.

If a White Pointer shark smells you, pat it on the nose. It will go to sleep thinking you are wonderful.

Journey to Pulau Aur

Last August Terese and I decided to visit friends of ours in Singapore, Jerry and Veronica. Jerry for a short time was a South Pacific club member until he was transferred to Jakarta and then Singapore in the early nineties.

After a few days of sightseeing in Singapore, we got onto a bus leaving from Newton Circus, to begin a trip to an island off the east coast of Malaysia called Pulau Aur. The bus left at six o'clock Friday night, a few miles down the road we had to go through the Malaysian Customs. We were made to go through twice because an official turned up and wanted to see how things were running, then one of our group had too much alcohol – all our bags were then sent back and thoroughly searched and our passports re-inspected – this was the beginning of a very long night.

Our coach travelled from the customs border checkpoint and travelled about 60km an hour.. We arrived at our next transfer at a fishing village called Mersing, it was now midnight and raining. Because of the low tide we hopped onto long boats (without our luggage) and were then taken out of the river and transferred to what I can only describe as a 60ft long refugee boat. Inside the boat were two long racks with foam laid out on them; this was where approximately sixty of us had to sleep for the next four hours. The smell inside was of a diesel/salt mix, and body odour. I made sure that Terese and I stayed close to the rear door - if this thing was going to sink I wanted to be able to get out of there quickly I was thinking to myself "I am too old for this, but what an adventure !"

We safely arrived at our island 4.30am as the sun was just showing its rays over the horizon. What a sight, Pulau Aur, tropical island paradise jutting out of the South China Sea.

We climbed onto the jetty and were Divers Lodge and told first dive in instead, the sun had finally come the coral reef and that brilliant pink and it's only Saturday morning.

All food was a combination of and seafood and I think I am now there anytime just for the food. my first dive, Jerry had already island.

Back into the boats and we were This took ten minutes as the islands are really only palm tree covered rocks sticking out of the ocean. The dive briefing was very professional and we were made to introduce ourselves around. By the end of the day we would all be friends.

It's been a long time since I have worn a light wet suit and I liked it. Down the anchor rope to a depth of fifteen metres, it wasn't as clear as I thought it would be from the surface but still had ten-metre visibility. The bottom was a combination of granite rock and coral, plenty of parrot fish, other pelagic fish and clown fish. I have never seen so many clown fish in one place in my life, and they were very colourful, different somehow. Even the parrot fish were like no other I have ever seen before; I was then regretting not bringing a full camera kit.

We did another boat dive just before lunch at another part of the island, still just as beautiful, more clown fish and a couple of black tip sharks. The diving was just great. Two more dives after lunch and a night dive.

The night dive was uneventful but Jerry found a lot of crayfish, also sea hares and coral shrimp, it was a nice dive but after forty minutes going in one line I thought it was about time that the dive master turned back towards the boat, we just kept going. I was getting concerned here and so was Jerry. I decided to ascend and to have a look; I took my time and when I surfaced I sighted about three fishing boats. I can't tell you what was going through my mind. Censored ! Here I am swimming around in the South China Seas with fishing boats all around. The dive master came up, gave a signal with his torch and one of the boats came over and picked us up. That's how they do it. It wasn't so bad after all.

When we got back to the resort a bar-b-q and smorgasbord was waiting for us and the party was about to begin. Dinner was excellent; as usual the food was full of oriental spices. Chicken, pork, seafood and salads. Anthony brought out the wine. He had got it though Customs somehow. We proceeded to have a riotous good night.

The next morning I thought I had the bends; I am not going to admit to a hangover.

The boat did another two dives before we departed for home. Pulau Aur is only operated on weekends and the Singaporeans put a shown to our bungalows at the an hour. I opted to have breakfast up and what a sight ! I could see sunrise; this was worth the trip local Malaysian, Chinese, western addicted to it, I would go back After breakfast I was ready for done one just out front of the lot into that time and really let their hair down.

During the return boat trip to Mersing we had a fantastic view of this idyllic group of islands and regretting leaving so soon.

I would like to go back up there for a holiday, but I would not do Pulau Aur again, but would possibly take the luxury ferry from Singapore harbour to the resort on Pulau Tioman in the Pahang Marine Parks. As I said, I'm too old for a backpackers style again.

I now have the contacts for up there and intend going back in the near future. It's well worth the effort.

Team Work Effects Rescue

Two exhausted scuba divers found after disappearing in rough seas off the Queensland coast are lucky to be alive, rescuers said.

The divers, a couple in their mid-twenties, were spotted in choppy conditions almost two hours after being reported missing while diving at Flinders Reef, north-east of Brisbane.

They were being swept out to sea by the outgoing tide when a Queensland Government rescue helicopter spotted them about three nautical miles east of their original position.

An air and sea search was mounted for the pair just after midday when they failed to return to their boat during a Pro Dive outing to the Aarhus shipwreck, north-east of Cape Moreton.

Queensland Rescue air crewman Greg Beer said the helicopter dropped a smoke flare as a guide for the dive boat to make the rescue.

Mr Beer said the divers, both locals, were extremely lucky to have been spotted six nautical miles offshore.

"It's a long swim in. It was highly unlikely they would have made it to land," he told AAP.

"They were floating out to sea. There was an outgoing tide.

"It was choppy which made spotting quite hard, with a lot of white caps."

Senior Constable Andrew Gale, of the Queensland Water Police, said the divers were unhurt but exhausted from their ordeal.

"There are a lot of very strong currents in combination with heavy sea conditions and strong winds," he said.

Pro Dive owner Steve Hills said the man and woman were certified divers.

He said both divers had been issued with safety devices to be used to signal the boat if they became lost.

"The story they tell us is that they lost those ... and they were unable to signal the boat," Mr Hills said.

He said an emergency plan was activated when the divers failed to surface from the dive.

"We've contacted Workplace Health and Safety. The diving inspector there said the emergency procedures that we have in place worked effectively," Mr Hills said.

Re

SPDC BBQ 21/10/01

Might I start by saying that the devotion of our President Bernie to the club is with out comparison!! Bernie was on a dive trip to the Solomon's but on Saturday while in Brisbane waiting to depart he had a guilt attack and decided he should attend our club BBQ on the Sunday instead!! I can only say that such dedication is truly amazing!! Well done Bernie that was above and beyond the call of duty.

The dive/bbq at Bare Island was great, beautiful sunny day ideal for a bbq. About 18-20 people attended with Simon doing the cooking and Bernie supervising (thank god). Bernie was also voted the no: 1 tosser!! (of salad) The snags and kranski's were great along with Dave's salad, chips dips etc.

We dived both sides of Bare finding Seahorses, Red Indians, nudis, cowrie's and all the usual fishes etc. Viz was about 10-15m and around 18 degrees. I managed to christen my new Fantasea housed camera so we will wait and see what the results are like! There was about 80 other divers there with schools etc so I was glad to get there early for a park. Every one had a good time and it was great to see some new faces there.

Scans Day Report

The annual Sydney dive for the Scuba Clubs' Association of NSW (SCAN) was held on Sunday 11th. November at Frenchmans Bay, La Perouse. As usual, St George Scuba Club had the largest turnout of divers and non-divers. We had the boats of Michael McFadyen and Les Caterson, Mark Palmer, Mark Ridsdale, John Beddie and non-member Paul Wright.

The five boats managed to fit all divers aboard (Eddy Labour, Louise Crowell, Bev Thomas, Andreas Thimm, Raelene Boyle, Geoff Sanders, Ray Moulang, Robyn Hewitt, Jo Edney, Graeme Lehman, Dave Burns, Leo Bergagnin, Heinz Bendinger, Richie Newnham and Phil Rose as well as two non-members).

John Beddie's boat dived the wreck of the SS Hilda while the rest dived The Leap area at Kurnell.

The other clubs present were DOUTS, Ryde and URG. They dived mostly around "The Leap" as well due to the strong southerly winds. The other Sydney members, South Pacific, University of NSW and LoTech had no divers present, although South Pac did bring the barbecue before leaving.

After the dives, we were joined by quite a few other members, including Glen Townsend, Daryl Gibbs, Russell Stoker, Elly Caterson, John McDonald, Judy Morris (and family), Carina Gregory and members of the Moulang, Rose and Palmer families. We also had a few other non-members come as guests.

With Russell tending the bar, we had a few drinks and looked like having a hungry day until the BBQ finally turned up at midday. Members of all clubs assisted with the cooking and soon we were all enjoying sausage sandwiches. The children seemed to have an enjoyable day, swimming and playing. The afternoon wound to a close about 3.30 pm.

This was a very enjoyable day, with almost 40 St George Scuba Club members, family and guests attending, by far the biggest number from the smallest club. Thanks to the SCAN committee who organised as well as to Russell Stoker for arranging the drinks and tending to the bar.
