

Xuan Mai Proposed Nature Reserve

Alternative site name(s)

None

Province(s)

Ha Tay

Status

Proposed

Management board established

No

Latitude

20°54'N

Longitude

105°35'E

Bio-unit

05c – North Annam

Conservation status

Xuan Mai is the site of the Forestry College of Vietnam. A proposal to establish a 400 ha nature reserve at Xuan Mai for the purpose of scientific research was made in 1996 (MARD 1997). Xuan Mai is not included on the 2010 list (FPD 1998).

potential educational value of the proposed nature reserve is, therefore, high.

Related projects

No information.

Literature sources

None.

Topography and hydrology

Xuan Mai is located at the western extreme of the plain of the Red River Delta. The site is situated at an elevation below 100 m, and is drained by the Con river, a tributary of the Day river.

Biodiversity value

No information.

Conservation issues

No information.

Other documented values

Xuan Mai Forestry College is the main centre for vocational training for forest guards and Special-use Forest management staff in northern Vietnam. The