Recreational diving offers a world of exciting activity for the vast majority of divers. For those experienced scuba divers who wish to explore the more challenging reaches of the underwater world, technical scuba diving provides the pathway. Until now, however, there hasn't been an well established transition from recreational to technical diving because of the significant hurdle represented by new diving methodologies and equipment.

The 'debut' of DSAT's first course in the TecRec program – Tec Deep Diver – sets the stage for DSAT to develop and offer additional programs based on request interests and needs of the diving industry.
