

Kerry numbered 'Real Photo' Cards.

We now come to the various 'real photo' cards produced by, or attributable to, Kerry. Some similar cards that are attributed to Trickett (but published by Kerry) are also included here. As explained in the introduction, the backs of these cards have no necessary systematic relationship to card series, but are simply a product of the print stock to hand at the time.

JKJK86 Individually numbered cards, printed in black-&-white (usually faded to sepia – and it is likely that many were originally printed in sepia toning)

JKJK87 Individually numbered cards printed as photographs and hand-coloured. In many cases, the colours have blurred, even to the extent where it is almost impossible to recognise the view. We also include here two un-numbered cards which otherwise 'fit' here.

N.B. In series JKJK86 & JKJK87, we have incorporated the number on the card into our own number. Where the same image appears in various formats, an additional letter is used.

- Although not related specifically to the caves, this card has one of the more interesting backs we have seen. The sender has glued to the card a poem, apparently cut from a magazine :

(To be sung to the tune of "Violets")
*Every day I send thee postcards,
 Which for pennies I have bought,
 Just to fill your wretched album ;
 I've no time for other thought.*

*I've no time to climb the mountains,
 Visit churches, see the sights,
 All the days I hunt thee postcards,
 Which I post to thee at nights.*

*Knows't thou what these horrid pictures
 Could they speak for me, would say ?
 They would wish for thee, the nightmare
 They have been to me by day.*
